Woods Proves to be an Ohio Man.

[illegible], Dec. 15.—There is much comment [illegible] concerning the nomination of Circuit [illegible] Woods for the seat on the supreme bench, [illegible] Justice Strong. He is conceded to be an [illegible], and is highly esteemed by lawyers of [illegible] circuit, but there is much indignation [illegible] and no little amusement [illegible] outsiders that he is credited to [illegible] although a citizen of Ohio by birth and [illegible] the period of the war of the rebellion. [illegible] southern senators to-day declared emphatically that they will oppose his confirmation [illegible] that it is grossly unfair to proceed to fill the supreme bench with Ohio [illegible] indications are that a pretty [illegible] will be made against Judge Woods' [illegible] on this account. [illegible] Says he Didn't Mean it.

[illegible] Wade Hampton is published to-day [illegible] that he intended to challenge Secretary [illegible]. This disclaimer from Hampton was published [illegible] of a severe letter from a South Carolinian [illegible] in California, who charged Hampton with causing the defeat of Hancock. After summing up the democratic blunders, the writer adds: "But these causes put together were not so potent for harm as Gen. Hampton's utterances. His speeches upon the nomination of Hancock and at Staunton, Va., told terribly against us, but the worst and most unfortunate of all was his correspondence looking to a duel with John Sherman. But for that, Hancock might have been president and the people of the south, free from federal interference for the next four years." The writer is an admirer of Hampton. He continues: "His great services to the people of South Carolina entitle him to their lasting gratitude. He has many friends in this country and they are not altogether confined to the democratic party. I have heard but one feeling expressed in relation to his Sherman correspondence and that is one of deep mortification and disappointment that with one breath such a high reputation for prudence and statesmanship should be irretrievably lost." This letter has resulted in the publication of Hampton's attempt at self-defense. His friends there say that he feels keenly the criticism that had been poured out upon him from his own party.

Hill's Fractional Currency.

The bill introduced by Senator Hill, of Colorado, to-day for the retirement of $1 and $2 greenbacks is a measure of much interest for silver producing regions. He has been investigating the subject involved in this bill for some time and intends to support it with a speech in the senate, which will present some striking facts. For instance, he has ascertained that the cost of maintaining in circulation the amount of the small greenbacks now outstanding, between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000, is not less than $350,000 a year, it being necessary to redeem and reprint them so frequently. The main purpose of the bill, of course, is to enlarge the demand for silver coin by an amount equal to the aggregate of the $1 and $2 greenbacks, and thus put in circulation the standard silver dollars now so rapidly accumulating in the U. S. treasury. It is remarked in this connection that Great Britain issues no money of lower denomination than a £5 note and that in France also small notes are unknown.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Hill, of Col.—For the retirement of small legal tenders.

Pendleton—To regulate and promote the efficiency of the civil service; also, against political assessment of U. S. officials.

Coke announced that on Tuesday next he will ask consideration of senate bill providing for the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians and extending the laws of states and territories over Indians. He said that the bill is thought important by the interior department.

Burnside and Morrill advocated the bill devoting part of the proceeds of sales of public lands to public education.

Brown followed Morrill in support of the bill. He pointed out that nearly all our prominent men from Washington to Garfield have been of poor parentage, and had, by their thirst for knowledge and their industry, worked their way up to the top. Doubtless a thousand boys of equal capacity with those he had mentioned, had remained mute and inglorious through the absolute impossibility of overcoming unfavorable circumstances and obtaining the necessary education to lift them above the mass. Brown referred to the great advantage enjoyed by New England in comparison with other sections of the country by reason of her supremacy in education. She had furnished or educated most of the men who had controlled our public affairs. The growth of Prussia and German predominance were explicable by the education of the whole mass of people and making every individual man an intelligent aid to the state in war or peace. There were special reasons why the south should favor this bill. The senator from Vermont (Morrell) had referred to the alarming amount of illiteracy in the United States, but had not analyzed it. Unfortunately it was disproportionately great in the south. One reason for this was that under the old system of southern society more attention was given to the education of the ruling classes than to that of the whole masses. Another reason was the non-education of slaves. All now agree that the blacks should be educated, but the south was too poor to do it alone. They lost two billions of dollars in value of slaves, which they held constitutionally before the war. They spent two billions more in maintaining their armies; and immense amounts by the destruction of property. He thanked the framers of the bill for providing that the greater amount of the money appropriated should go to states where there was the most illiteracy. He complimented the negroes upon their self-control and peaceableness under their new political condition. He had more belief than he had once in their future advancement among the races. The whole country was interested in the intelligence of the colored population. There was complaint that the negroes were cheated at the polls. Ignorance can be cheated anywhere. Educate these people up to a knowledge of their rights and the form and spirit of our government, and there will be less and less danger. He hoped that the blacks and whites alike would be educated in the love of republican institutions. He reiterated his belief that republican institutions could be insured by the spread of education, and appealed to the republicans of all parts of the country to secure general benefit by this means.

Brown stood at a desk upon the republican side of the chamber and faced the republican members while speaking, but was listened to with marked interest by all present. The bill was then informally laid aside until to-morrow, when it is assigned to reach a vote.

On motion of Cockrell, the senate took up the senate bill for the relief of Samuel A. Lowe, appropriating $4750 to pay him for services and expenses as clerk of the territorial legislature of Kansas in 1855.

Ingalls said that this was an attempt to have pay granted for the compilation of for what are known as the "bogus statutes of Kansas" on the slave code, which was repealed and publicly burned by the free soilers, as soon as they obtained control of the state. The statutes were the blackest, most damnable body of laws ever attempted to be passed. They were never recognized as laws in Kansas. Ingalls in responding to Vest, said that he did not propose at this period of the nation's history, to enter upon the vindication of John Brown. John Brown was executed as a traitor on the 2d of December, 1859, but the nation took up the flag that he laid down at Harper's Ferry and bore it in triumph through four years of war to the Appomattox court house. John Brown was about four years ahead of his time. It was the nation that was laggard and it required but very few years after his decease for the nation to occupy the platform on which he had stood. Ingalls did not intend to be drawn into any controversy with Vest on this subject. He had simply stated that the laws of Missouri formed the basis of the code in question, being changed or supplemented in such respects as to fit them for the peculiar state of society desired to be established in Kansas. He continued to argue against the validity of Lowe's claim which had slept to await its opportunity.

Cockrell held that Lowe had earned his pay.

Vest referred to the remark of Ingalls that the code was based on the code of Missouri. No such statutes ever existed in Missouri. He did not propose to revive questions of that terrible period. Slavery was dead, and he had no wish to bring it to life; but he could not refrain since the subject has been brought up, from saying that violence begot violence and outrage provoked outrage. People sent out by Plymouth church and other pillars of God and morality, headed by that old scoundrel John Brown, who afterwards justly expiated his crime on the scaffold at Harper's Ferry, were responsible for much of the violence of that unfortunate time. He did not propose to quietly hear the people of Missouri charged with projecting the slavery statutes into Kansas. Lowe was an irresponsible servant and should be paid for his clerical work.

Edmunds said that he began to get interested in this bill, since John Brown's name had been brought up. "Although," he added, "nothing that can be said of him in this senate, good or evil, will mar the brightness of that fame that will go down as the type of honest, though it may be misguided, love of liberty. His body lies mouldering in the grave, but 'his soul', I thank God, 'is marching on.'"

The senate, without action, adjourned.

House.

Belford, of Colorado, introduced a bill for the retirement of small legal tenders.

A bill pensioning the widow of the late President Tyler $100 per month passed.

Baker reported the fortification bill and the house went into committee to consider it, Wood agreeing to let it have precedence over the funding bill.

Ellis complained that with 15,000 miles of utterly defenseless sea coast we were in a sad plight. War might come any time. The nations of the world were constantly quarreling and a strong navy was our surest safeguard.

Randall urged economy and said that an increased appropriation was useless. There was no danger of foreign war.

Ellis referred to the inter-oceanic canal and possible complications arising therefrom as additional reasons for sea coast defense.

Randall said that European financiers refused to move in that matter unless they had absolute commendation of the American government. Did not Ellis know regarding the wars in South America that other governments had sought the United States to take the initiative steps for bringing about peace. European governments in this instance and practically acknowledged the Monroe doctrine, and instead of undertaking to make peace themselves, they had come to the United States and had asked the United States to be the arbitrator. He appealed to the house without regard to party to meet this attempt to increase appropriations on the threshold and prevent that policy being inaugurated as the policy of this expiring house. Let increase in appropriations rest with those who would come to the next congress with renewed confidence. The policy of the government was rather than to build armaments to decrease the burdens of debt, take off taxation, modify revenue and internal taxation acts, and relieve the people instead of at the very first opportunity after the recent election increasing the burdens of taxation. He thought that thereby republicans would recommend themselves to the further and ultimate confidence of those from whom they came.

Calkins argued against the amendment and suggested that the modern and effective method of defending seaports was the torpedo system.

Speer argued on the authority of Gen. Grant that what was needed was not more extensive fortifications but more heavy ordnance. The amendment was rejected, yeas 56, nays 90.

Other amendments offered by Reagan, Fort and Ellis were all either rejected or ruled out. The committee then rose and reported the bill to the house and it passed.

After debate, Johnston, of Virginia, under direction of the military committee, offered an amendment increasing the appropriation from one hundred thousand to half a million.

Gibson of Louisiana, from the committee on the Mississippi levees, reported a bill appropriating $1,801,000 for improvement of the Mississippi river to be expended by direction of the secretary of war in accordance with the recommendations, plans, specifications and estimates, and under the advisory supervision of the Mississippi river commissioner, ordered printed and recommitted. Adjourned.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.

The Condition of Ireland as Depicted by the Judges of the Courts.

New York, Dec. 15.—A Dublin special says: Judge Lawson at Belfast yesterday charged the grand jury: While only one agrarian case is before me for trial, I cannot ignore the constabulary returns. I am sorry to publicly state that a clear conclusion which I arrived at is that a system of intimidation which has so long been prevailing in the southern and western counties is gradually but surely making itself felt in this great northern province. I have known this country for nearly half a century and never in the course of my experience do I remember any state of things at all parallel to that which is now existing. A system of intimidation on a large scale is perfectly unconcealed and openly avowed. It is practiced on those concerned in the administration of the law from every judge on the bench down to the bailiff serving an ejectment process. All are sought to be made subject to its influence.

Judge Fitzgerald in Ulster said the offences were of a character which strikes at the peace and welfare of society, and that if they were allowed to go on they would work the total disorganization of the social system. Some organization, acting on cupidity, passion and fears of the people, have reduced certain districts in the country to anarchy and confusion, little, if at all, differing from civil war. True liberty has ceased to exist; intolerable tyranny prevails; life is not secure; right is disregarded; the processes of law cannot be enforced; dishonesty and lawlessness disgrace the land. It is said in excuse or palliation that this flood of anarchy and crime has been produced by bad existing laws. It is not for us to consider whether our laws require amendment or whether our institutions are open to improvement. These are matters for the legislature. No candid mind can doubt the disposition of the imperial parliament and its anxiety to consider or redress real grievances. I add, for myself, for you, and for all well-thinking people, that we are prepared to make all the sacrifices, if by doing so we can procure a restoration of peace and prosperity to this distracted country. The primary functions of the government are to protect life and property and repress crime. It is to aid in accomplishing these objects that we are assembled here. Our duty is to administer the law as it exists, and endeavor to eliminate crime from the land. With these objects in view, I offer you my best aid, and expect from you firm and courageous assistance.

The picture held up by Judge Barry at Waterford is not so dark, showing that the spirit of agrarianism is less strong in Tipperary, Waterford, Wexford and Kilkenny, though a considerable increase in that class of crime is reported.

Another Outrage.

London, Dec. 15.—Wm. Bence Jones, an Englishman and large land owner, residing at Lisselane, County Cork, writes to the Times that he has expended £250,000 on improvement of his property and has hitherto enjoyed good relations with his tenants; but because he refuses to accept Griffith's valuation, his tenants have been deterred by threats from paying their rent. He is threatened that his grave will be dug opposite his door. His laborers are compelled to leave him and none dare buy his produce, because when it is sent to market it is surrounded by a howling mob. A correspondent of the Times at Cork says that when Jones on Tuesday tried to ship 80 head of cattle and sheep to Bristol for sale, a number of large shippers informed the steamship company that they would cease their dealings with it if the cattle were shipped and the company consequently refused to take the cattle, as also did the Clyde Shipping Company. Finally the drovers refused to tend the cattle, which, after straying through the streets, were finally driven by the police to the Great Western Railroad and that company forwarded them to Dublin by train in spite of the efforts of "Boycotters" to prevent the company from supplying a train. Jones is unpopular because of his writings in the periodical press in opposition to public works. The police promised to protect the laborers if they would remain with Mr. Jones, but they refused. The land league will support the laborers who left the estate. The family of Mr. Jones are protected by armed police and the house is guarded at night.

When Jones' cattle arrived at Dublin they were treated the same way as at Cork. An attempt will be made to ship the cattle to Glasgow or Liverpool. If that fails, Jones' agent will telegraph for instructions as to whether the cattle shall be conveyed to Bristol by way of Belfast. In the meantime police guard the cattle.

Terrorism in the Courts.

Dublin, Dec. 15.—At the Cork assizes, John Power and a party of armed men who forcibly entered a house from which tenants had been evicted near Tralee, County Kerry, in the night, about a fortnight ago, and split the ears of the occupant, a bailiff, have been acquitted, although identified by the prosecutor.

The Manning Case.

Dublin, Dec. 15.—The trial of Healy and Walsh, for intimidating farmer Manning, came up this morning. They pleaded not guilty. The court was crowded.

Healy and Walsh Acquitted.

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

Oregon Requested to Contribute a Memorial Block bearing an Appropriate Inscription and Device.

OFFICE OF WASHINGTON NATIONAL MONUMENT SOCIETY, WASHINGTON, Nov. 27, 1880.

To His Excellency Hon. W. W. Thayer, Governor of Oregon—At a meeting of the Washington National Monument Society held on the 2d inst., the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Washington National Monument society cordially invite those states of the union which have not made presentations of memorial blocks of stone for insertion in the monument now being erected in the federal capital to the memory of Washington, to furnish such blocks; and the secretary is and is hereby instructed to communicate this resolution to the executives of these states with the request that it be laid by them before their respective legislatures.

The work on the monument, in suspension for many years, is again resumed and the obelisk is rapidly advancing towards completion under the immediate direction and control of the general government in pursuance of acts of congress of August 2, 1876, and June 16, 1880, making appropriations for that object, (44th cong., 1st sess, stat. at large, vol. 19, ch. 250, page 123; 46th cong. 2d sess., statutes at large, vol. 21, page 208).

The first act provides for a joint commission to superintend the construction of the monument, and, continues the Washington National Monument Society, "for the purpose of soliciting and collecting money and material from the states, associations and the people in aid of the completion of the monument, &c."

The monument has now reached an altitude of 170 feet, 20 feet having been thus far added to the structure this fall, and it is expected that the shaft will reach its ultimate hight of 500 feet, and be dedicated by the 4th of July, 1884.

Contributions of memorial blocks, bearing appropriate inscriptions and devices, have been presented by many of the foreign powers—some taken from historical spots—and by the following states of our own country:

Maine	New York	South Carolina
Vermont	New Jersey	Georgia
New Hampshire	Delaware	Florida
Massachusetts	Pennsylvania	Alabama
Connecticut	Virginia	Mississippi
Louisiana	Tennessee	Kentucky
Arkansas	Missouri	Maryland
Ohio	Indiana	Illinois
Iowa	Wisconsin	Michigan
California,	Utah Territory

It will be perceived Oregon is among the few states that have not yet made contributions for this great work, and it is earnestly hoped that your honorable legislature, at its next session, will take such prompt action in the premises as will secure to the people of the state a lasting representation in this monument to the "Father of his Country," which in its grandeur and its strength will endure throughout time and bespeak the preeminent virtues of Washington to remotest generations.

State blocks generally show the coat of arms of the states donating them, accompanied by some suitable legend.

The block donated, in size, should conform to the following dimensions: In height, two feet, by not less than two nor more than five feet in length, by not less than three nor more than six inches in thickness. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN B. BLAKE, Secretary.

OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

The following are the officers and members of the Washington National Monument Society:

The Mussel Slough Case.

San Francisco, Dec. 15.—In the Mussel slough case to-day, the defense in cross-examining witnesses on the stand to prove that the settlers' league was organized for the purpose of holding lands by legal means only. Also, to show that Hartt fired on the marshals at the time of the fight. Some pretty strong evidence has been adduced on these points.

In the Mussel slough case this afternoon, testimony for the defense continued.

H. D. Brewer gave a further account of the fight, also as to the objects of the settlers' league. He to[illegible] resistance to the U. S. marshal proposed in the league.

John J. Doyle, one of the defendants and a prominent member of the league, testified as to the organization and objects of the league, and said that in consideration of the question between the settlers and the railroad company nothing was said of resistance except by legal means.

The Weather.

Rain ceased early this morning and it is now clear with a brisk west wind.

The Bonanza Suit still Grinding.

The trial in the case of John H. Burke against James C. Flood et al was resumed to-day. J. W. McClung, assistant secretary of the San Francisco stock board, was called to prove the highest and lowest prices of Con. Virginia for each month since January 1872. Thomas Bell, Lewis Gerstle, Robert F. Morrow, Daniel Cook, Walter S. Hobart, Lewis P. Drexler, W. S. Hopkins and Thomas H. Williams were called to prove the custom of issuing stock of corporations in payment for mining ground, and that very seldom if ever was it that money was paid for titles. Solomon Heydenfeldt was recalled and stated that the purchase of the Kinney ground was outside of the original arrangement for organizing the Con. Virginia company. Thomas H. Williams also stated that he had bought part of the Kinney ground, Flood paying the purchase price and dividing the profits. Chas. H. Fish was called to trace the title of Burke's stock, but was required to produce the books, also a list of proxies voting at various annual meetings. S. P. Dewey was then questioned as to the date of acquiring his last stock, but could not say of whom he bought as it was purchased in the stock board. At 12 M. the case was adjourned till to-morrow at 10 A. M.

The S. F. Board of Trade Congratulates Ammen.

The committee on inter-oceanic canal of the board of trade met this afternoon and sent a telegram to Admiral Ammen congratulating him on the favorable outlook for the Nicaraguan canal. Also one to Senator Booth asking him and the delegation to lend their support to the project.

Flood in Alta Mine.

Virginia, Dec. 15.—This morning crosscut No. 1 on the 2050-foot level of Alta, struck a flow of water that came with such force that it flooded the level in two hours. The rush of water followed a blast that broke into the edge of the ore body. Nothing could be seen showing the character of the vein, owing to torrents of water and mud. Donkey pumps are working well, discharging 200 gallons a minute. The management expect to have the water out in about one week. Mining men here think that the flood will not last long.

Salt Lake, Dec. 15.—Gov. Murray having finished the count of votes for delegate, the gentile candidate, Campbell, protests against giving the certificate to Cannon, who, he claims, is a British subject with four wives.

IDAHO.

Idaho Legislature.

Boise City, Dec. 14.—The Idaho legislature convened here yesterday, and a complete organization of both branches has been effected. Hon. John Halley, of Boise City, was elected president of the council, and Hon. E. B. True, of Idaho county, speaker of the house; both are democrats. The democrats have a working majority in both branches.

The two houses will meet in joint convention to-morrow evening, when Gov. Neil will deliver his message. The governor in his message takes strong grounds against the Mormon practice of polygamy in the eastern counties of the Territory and recommends changes in the laws to meet and check the growing evil.

The reports of the controller and treasurer show a surplus of over $15,000 in the treasury against a debt of only $19,000.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Carbon Hill Coal.

New Tacoma, Dec. 15.—Five hundred tons of coal for the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, from the new Carbon Hill mines, went over the road last night to Portland. A small train for home consumption had previously come to this place. The mines are now fairly at work, with a present capacity of one hundred tons per day. The supply will henceforth depend upon the securing of necessary miners to take out coal and vessels to transport it.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

An Average Week's Business—Comment by the New York Public.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Public's table of clearing house transactions for the week shows the following gains and losses over the corresponding week last year:

Losses—Philadelphia, 8.5 per cent; Milwaukee, 7.0. Gains—New York, 31.1; Boston, 22.0; Chicago, 19.9; Cincinnati, 35.2; Baltimore, 13.7; New Orleans, 3.3; San Francisco, 14.3; Louisville, 27.6; Pittsburg, 18.1; Providence, 17.3; Kansas City, 35.9; Indianapolis, 39.6; Cleveland, 6.9; New Haven, 20.3; Lowell, 32.5; Syracuse, 12.4.

Speculation of all kinds has been checked and a period of reaction may naturally be expected. The immediate cause is tight money and the refusal of lenders to put money at 6 per cent. when they can get from 45 to 90 per cent. more. The more remote cause is that speculation has swallowed up all the funds left available by an enormous legitimate business and an unprecedented hoarding, and thus placed itself at the mercy of the private lenders of money. There is evidently some hesitation in the movement of cotton since the speculation in that article became rampant, but business at nearly all the trading and manufacturing cities continues decidedly larger than it was last December.

Rumors about the Czar.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 15.—A rumor current some weeks ago of a proposed transfer of the Czar's authority to a council under the presidency of the Czarowitch, is renewed with the addition that the marriage of Princess Dolgorouki with the Czar will be declared legal, she receiving the title of Duchess Holstein Gottorp, and her children will be princes and princesses of that title. The Czar and family will retire to Livadia in Crimea. He remaining emperor in name, actual authority, however, residing in the Czarowitch.

Success of the Panama Scheme.

Success of the Panama canal enterprise is enormous. The organization is in full swing.

The "Oregon style" in France.

Paris, Dec. 15.—The Intransigeant, Rochefort's Journal, to-day, calls Gambetta a liar, robber, forger, a false Genoese and a wretch worse than Thiers or MacMahon. The France states that in consequence of rumors about Rochefort's sanity, it suppresses an article in type.

WRINKLED FACES.

It is a painful sight to see young ladies in their teens with wrinkled and prematurely old faces; nevertheless it is quite common, and to any one who observes the tendency of the times the reason is very apparent. Owing to flaming advertisements and bogus certificates, in which are used the names of eminent physicians and chemists, the unsuspecting and credulous have been induced to use some of the so-called liquid beautifiers, all of which are known to be positively injurious and if used for any length of time will destroy the complexion, so that it will be next to impossible to restore it. Mothers should be very careful to see that their daughters do not use these preparations but ask for and obtain Slaven's Harmless Yosemite Face Powder, the only harmless beautifier. NEWS NOTES FROM EUGENE.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

EUGENE, Dec. 13, 1880.

Messrs. Whitaker and Perkins arrived here last week from the swamp land regions.

We were treated to a good thunder storm on Saturday night last accompanied with very heavy rain.

Prof. Condon delivered a lecture at Wilbur on Friday last, and returned to Eugene by train the next day.

The Baptist concert on Saturday evening was well attended, and the exercises well rendered. A good sum was realized by charging admission.

A new fence has been placed around [illegible] yard, also a rail for hitching horses. Resetting of trees in the place of those that died would help the appearance of our public square.

A hunting party, consisting of Thomas Brisbane, Reuben Martin, Elijah Martin, L. Gay, and Mr. Harrington, went to the Siuslaw country last week and succeeded in getting ten fine deer.

Our citizens intend having the distances measured and surveyed from the springs south of town to Skinner's butte, so as to be able to form a correct estimate of expense in constructing water works.

The Eugene Sportsman's Club is in a flourishing condition, and have arranged for a match hunt. The club presented Mr. Jasper Stevens with a medal for faithful services rendered as secretary of the club.

Eastern Star Chapter of the Masonic fraternity of this place intends giving a public installation on Dec. 27th. Mrs. J. McClaren, Miss Starr and Byron Van Houten, Esq., are the committee of arrangements, which means a good time coming.

Rufus Callison, Esq., has removed his stock of goods and groceries into the brick building adjoining Friendly & Ellsworth's store. Abrams & Bros., have sold their foundry to a party in Albany. Mr. Abrams has a force of men engaged in laying the foundation for his new brick store.

A. O. U. W., elected their officers at their last meeting for the ensuing term, F. W. Osburne, P. M. W.; John Sloan, M. W.; D. O. Underwood, G. F.; A. C. Briggs, O.; H. M. Sloan, recorder; F. B. Dunn, receiver; G. B. Dorris, financier; C. A. Lewis, G.; C. F. Johnson, S. W.; James Warnick, O. W.; James McClaren, trustee.

St. Mary's church (Episcopal) of this place, has received some extensive repairs and alterations. On the outside a new roof and new walks have been made and on the inside an indroes and rood screen has been constructed. The indroes are painted blue and red and surmounted with a cross and presents a very imposing appearance. The church organization is strong in membership and is altogether in a flourishing condition. The Rev. A. P. Anderson has charge of the flock and is well liked by them. Miss Sharples has charge of the Sunday school, and through her efficient management has a large number of pupils attending. Miss Star has the management of the day school and is getting along very nicely with her classes. We are informed by Messrs. Irving & Parks, the architects, that only one church in Oregon can compare with the above mentioned church for beauty in the way of indroes and rood screen.

MEXICO.

Mexican Affairs.

Mexico, Dec. 6.—President Gonzales sent no message to congress on the occasion of his inauguration.

A deputation of citizens of the United States, resident in Mexico visited President Gonzales and have been cordially received.

Several journals complain of the conspicuous attentions shown the French minister. They say that neither the United States representative in Mexico nor the Mexican minister at Paris received such diplomatic attentions.

The populace cheered ex-President Diaz when he left the palace after delivering the executive departments to President Gonzales.

The Monitor Republico says that no party supports President Gonzales. The inhabitants witnessed his inauguration with greatest indifference and the cheers were paid for.

Proposed Coinage Charges.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The house coinage committee discussed the proposition to impose melting charges on deposits of bullion for coin. Burchard, director of the mints, will make a statement Monday.

LOURDES.

PORTLAND, Dec. 15, 1880.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Your remarks in this morning's issue about the miracles that take place at Lourdes in France, were read by me and, I am confident, by many others of your readers with no little amount of surprise. Not wishing to take up too much space in your columns, I beg to correct, as briefly as possible, a few errors committed by you.

1. Your explanation of these miracles, if it is telling it at all, appears to be drawn from a natural physical action of faith on the bodily constitution of believers. Faith is an act of the mind whereby we firmly believe what we consider to be true. Now I will respectfully ask you, do you, in sober earnest, mean to say that such an act of the mind can restore sight to a blind man, speech to a dumb woman, and the use of the limbs to a cripple of either sex? I suppose you will reply in the affirmative. Well then, what do you say if such a miracle takes place in a child two or three years old, carried to Lourdes by its parents and prayed for by them? 2. When you speak about priests turning stone into bread, priests calling dead men to life, again, you seem to be under the impression that the miracles of Lourdes are claimed to be performed by priests. No such thing. No priest performed miracles here. The simple fact is that sick, infirm people travel to Lourdes; are carried there by others; pray to the Blessed Virgin Mary, are prayed for by their friends, bathe the afflicted parts of their body in the water of a little brook or drink of that water and, without the interposition of any priest whatever, find themselves cured from diseases pronounced by their doctors incurable. 3. But, dear sir, you put yourself on the verge of ridicule when seeking shelter under such questionable authority as that of David Hume. You tell your readers that, if a dead man were to be raised from his grave, you would not believe it. With David Hume, as a historian, I have nothing to do; but, as a philosopher, he was a fraud. He was not only a sceptic in religion; he was a sceptic in everything else. To him nothing was sure and certain. Now if you are his disciple you will believe with your master that fire is no cause of heat.

A little more common sense, and a little less philosophy, would do much good to many a writer of our days. Facts are stubborn things; if a fact takes place, common sense comes in believing it, and if common sense stands on one side, you know very well how we call what stands on the other.

MARINE DISASTER AT THE NORTH.

The Bark "David Hoadley" Goes Ashore on Rocky Point in Fuca Straits.

Port Townsend, Dec. 15.—Yesterday a heavy southeaster was blowing, during which several vessels were seen beating up the straits. Among these was the bark David Hoadley, from San Francisco for Port Gamble. Finding that he could not pass Point Wilson, the captain came to an anchor off Rocky Point. During the night the wind shifted suddenly to the southwest, upon which he let go his second anchor, it being impossible to get under way as that wind leads right on to Rocky Point. At noon to-day while the southwest wind was blowing very hard she parted one chain, the other anchor dragging, whereupon the vessel went ashore. The U. S. steamer Shubrick arrived here soon after and reported the ship's position, upon which Captain S. W. Dellon, on the part of the underwriters, immediately started for the place of disaster. He reports as follows: The ship is broadside on the beach, the wind at high tide having driven her within a hundred yards of the high water mark. The sea is breaking right over her fore and aft. She is lying amidst a lot of rugged rocks and boulders. The false keel has come off, and is on the beach, and no doubt as the vessel is working on that rocky beach, that her bottom on the off shore side must be pretty badly thumped through. On account of the breakers it has been found impossible so far to establish communication with the shore. Should the wind prevail as now blowing there is every prospect of the vessel going to pieces.

The Crew Saved—Splendid Conduct of Mr. Finchler, of Port Townsend.

Learning of the disaster to the Hoadley, Sheriff Miller, accompanied by Messrs. Finchler and Chapman, started this afternoon for Rocky Point. On reaching the place, Finchler courageously swam through the surf to a rock and caught a life-line from the vessel by lassoing it as it fell. He carried this to the shore safely. The crew were preparing to come ashore when the rescuing party started to return here.

SHIP BUILDING AND PROTECTION.

In an attempt to reply to THE OREGONIAN'S observations on the loss of our ocean carrying trade, the Salem Statesman refuses to allow that such loss is due to our system of "protection," but endeavors to maintain that the main reason why we can not build ships and sail them in competition with other nations is found in the high rate of wages with us. This throws the cause of the decline of ship building in the United States back on "protection" as plainly as we ever stated it. We are told that we must maintain the protective policy to keep up the wages of labor, yet here we have "protected" an industry till we have annihilated it. Under pretense of protecting American ship building we have increased the cost of building ships to such an extent that the industry is destroyed. It may be economic wisdom to maintain a policy which, under the plea of protecting labor in great lines of national enterprise, annihilates labor utterly therein; but where the gain to the American workingman who would be employed in building ships if the laws gave him a chance comes in, is not quite apparent. Of course the simple fact is that we do not protect our labor at all by this policy. The ships that carry our products are built in foreign countries and sailed by foreign seamen, and our "protected" shipwrights and "protected" seamen are forced to sit down in idleness, or are driven into other employments unsuited to them. Thus our workingmen and capitalists are alike cut off from a field in which it is of the highest national and economic importance that their energy and enterprise should be directed. The subject is one of no great intricacy. It demonstrates itself. Our laws not only deliberately prevent our people from building ships, but forbid them to buy ships from those who can and do build them. The consequence, beyond annihilation of ship-building in the United States, is that nearly all our foreign commerce, amounting to sixteen hundred million dollars a year, is carried on in foreign ships, while the earnings of this vast business, amounting to one hundred million dollars a year, are transferred to foreign pockets. This is "protection" with a vengeance. It is, however, the logic of protection in its fullest consummation.

What, then, should be done? If labor in our country can not compete with foreign labor in building ships if our people with all their natural advantages can not cope with others in this most important branch of national enterprise, then let us at least repeal those relics of mediæval policy, our navigation laws, and allow our people to buy ships freely from those who have sagacity enough to maintain a policy that enables them to build ships cheaply; and let us give our own citizens a chance with foreigners for the profits of our own carrying trade, at least. Our present policy forces this trade directly into foreign hands; and there it will remain unless we change the policy. Since, in order to protect labor in American ship-building we have "protected" it so far that it can not build ships at all, let us now repeal the laws which make it a crime for our citizens to buy ships to carry their own wheat, cotton, and other products to market. This, however, would be a gleam of sense of which our statesman who have maintained a policy which has annihilated our shipping may be incapable. They seem to want foreigners to have it all, while the American workingman, a victim to the sophistries of "protection," can't get a day's work at an American shipyard, and an American sailor, if he wishes to pursue his occupation, is forced to hire out to a foreign employer.

We have magnanimously presented to Great Britain the carrying trade of the world, and are asked by our own wise statesmen to admit that the act is one of great advantage to ourselves.

The fact is, this destructive policy is maintained as part of the whole scheme of protection which rules our laws for the benefit of great eastern manufacturers. Conscious that the whole system would fall if the false foundations on which it stands were exposed, they band together and refuse to allow it to be attacked in any part. We want to sell to Great Britain, but our tariff prohibits Great Britain from selling to us. The laws can't compel our citizens to build ships at losing rates, but they can and do force us to pay enormously high prices for nearly all manufactured goods. This is the direct and sole object of a protective tariff. In other words, a protective tariff is a tax levied on imported goods with a design to raise the price of home commodities. Protection is set up as a barrier to trade. Its object is to make goods dear. True, it professes that its object is to favor home labor. But it defeats itself, because its consequences reappear in the higher prices of all commodities which the workingman, as well as all others, must consume. In the long run, in the general scheme of things, the policy does not benefit our own laborers. For the more we buy of foreigners the more we must produce by home labor to pay for it. Free interchange of commodities, therefore, is the policy to stimulate home labor. It is true, of course, that a protective tariff may stimulate a certain branch of manufacture, and may even increase for a time the wages of labor in it. But is there any real gain in concentrating capital and labor in one employment by artificial stimulus and withdrawing them from others? Our protective system has beyond doubt stimulated certain manufactures; but it is equally certain that it has destroyed others. Thus, it has enabled eleven mills to monopolize the manufacture of steel rails at high prices and great profits, but it has annihilated ship-building and the profits of ocean commerce. While one industry is stimulated by this system another is depressed. That is to say, all that any interest or any class gains by protection, is gained always at the expense of some other interest or class. Every wave of ocean has a depression behind it.

The prosperity of the west and south depends on their selling their products to Great Britain. We do not take her goods, because our tariff prohibits them, but force her to pay the balances in cash. Of what advantage is this to us when we are obliged at once to pay out that cash for goods at higher prices than those at which we should be enabled to buy them direct of the customer who takes our products? Another thing. Our policy makes it distinctly to the interest of Great Britain to encourage direct dealing with other agricultural countries. The prosperity we now enjoy is the result chiefly of exporting the surplus of our crops. What would be the effect on that prosperity if Great Britain should levy such a duty on American breadstuffs as would make it profitable to develop the agricultural resources of Australia and the railway system of Russia? Our largest customer will not always pay her heavy balances in cash, nor is it our interest that she should do so. She wants our products and we want hers. But the protectionist sits as toll-gatherer at the gate, and for his own profit prohibits the exchange of our products. Of course we are obliged to submit, as we of the agricultural states have small power in the national congress. But at least we can let it be known that we are not so gullible as to accept without protest, and as if we were perfectly satisfied therewith, the sophisms, and the resulting injustice and losses, of the policy called protection.

If Virginia is the mother of presidents New York may be called the mother of vice-presidents. Chester A. Arthur is the seventh vice-president elected from that state. His six predecessors were Aaron Burr, George Clinton, Daniel D. Tompkins, Martin Van Buren, Millard Fillmore and William A. Wheeler.

MIRACLES AGAIN.

"A Priest" offers some observations on our remarks upon the reported miracles at Lourdes. We fully credit his statement that he felt much surprise on reading those remarks, since of course we can not but be aware that the position from which we presented the subject is the antipode of that from which he views it. Nothing is more common than the failure of two persons whose intellectual status towards any subject is so widely opposite, to understand each other. When the writer says he wishes to "correct a few errors" committed by us, we construe the expression as a statement of his wish to express dissent from the views we presented and to present his own. "Faith," he observes, "is an act of the mind whereby we firmly believe what we consider to be true." We cannot accept this as a strictly accurate definition, but we let it pass, having quoted it only to introduce what follows, viz: "I ask: Do you, in sober earnest, mean to say that such an act of the mind can restore sight to a blind man, speech to a dumb man, or the use of his limbs to a cripple?" By no means. We do not put the statement so broadly. We said only that we deemed it possible that under "psychological conditions induced by religious emotion and spiritual exaltation, triumph over physical infirmity, in certain forms and within certain limits, might be witnessed." That is all; and we don't know that we should call this a miracle. For instance, so great may be the power of man's emotional nature over his physical conditions that we should conceive it possible that one afflicted with rheumatism might hobble up to the brook of Lourdes, "pray to the blessed Virgin Mary, bathe his limbs in the brook and drink its waters," and thereafter walk away a whole man. But we should not think it possible that sight or hearing totally lost could be thus restored, nor that a man should go to the brook with a wooden leg and come away with a natural one. But if we are going to have actual miracles we require just such instances as these. To human experience nature proceeds in a regular and uninterrupted order. So tenacious is she of her laws, and so inexorable in enforcing them, that no more account is made of the lives of millions of human beings than of the flies of a summer. Acceptance of the doctrine of miracles requires us to believe that the regular order may be interrupted, and often is interrupted, by episodes incoherent with the general plan. Now this goes against all the observations of science and the experience of mankind. Supernatural acts do not come to pass in the world. Miracles occur only in periods and countries in which they are believed, and before persons disposed to believe in them. We cannot proceed with the subject, as it opens a discussion of vast length, and can only say further that the cures at Lourdes are incidents which do not appear to us to belong to the range of miracles at all.

A California land case recently decided by the supreme court of the United States is a very important one for the whole country. It is, in effect, that school grants do not cover mineral lands. The state of California claimed the right, under the grant from the general government, to dispose of sections 16 and 36 in every township, whether these sections were mineral or not. The original parties to the contest were several quartz mining companies vs. the state of California. The former claimed the land under mineral patents, and the latter under the school grant. The general land office decided against the claim of the state. A case was then made up for the courts in California, and appeal was taken to the supreme court of the United States. The decision is pointedly against the state's claim. Persons should be warned who may be tempted to purchase mineral lands in a state or territory, located in school sections.

Land agent Prosser's communication in reply to Messrs. Wheeler and Crawford on the Willamette valley and Cascades mountain road will attract the attention not only of those gentlemen but of many other persons. His statements are at very wide variance with theirs. The public having now the statements on both sides, will form its conclusions therefrom. For our own part, we see no reason to change or modify the opinion heretofore expressed, that the road as constructed is no equivalent for so great a body of land; nor in fact could any wagon road be.

A communication to Gov. Thayer, printed to-day, requests Oregon to contribute a memorial block to Washington monument. It will be nearly two years till our legislature meets again. Will not some of our wealthy and public spirited citizens meantime procure a suitable block and forward it to Washington?

A San Francisco mercantile paper says that the main cause of the great rise in the price of coal at that place is that freights from Seattle, Coos Bay and British Columbia are from seventy-five to one hundred per cent. higher than usual.

A Texas editor writes thus plainly: "The 'solid south' was met by a 'solid north,' and we are their'n for four years, and for all time to come, too, if we don't go to work, open school houses, and stop talking so much."

In the twelve months ended June 30, 1880, the patent office received 20,990 applications for patents and granted 13,584, besides 400 "reissues" and 569 patents for designs. The net revenue of the office was $191,621.

The New York Tribune is of opinion that "if Wade Hampton's chin had always preserved that statuesque calm which now distinguishes it, the democratic party would have less to mourn for to-day."

The bonds of the Northern Pacific railroad—the great forty million syndicate—will be offered in a few days simultaneously in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

CITY.

"A Young Hero."—Under this caption an interesting contribution appears in the Monthly Service of December, a monthly review of military and naval affairs, published in Philadelphia, from the pen of H. P. B. Sands. The writer is and has been for some years a practicing attorney in Washington city. The "young hero" whose distinguished record as a brave and gallant soldier during the war of the rebellion is mentioned in such complimentary terms by Mr. Sands is no other person than Capt. Roswell H. Lamson, the present capable and efficient clerk of the United States circuit and district court of Oregon. In premising the article in which Capt. Lamson's important services to the government are given briefly in detail, Mr. Sands says: "A sketch of the naval career of Lieut. R. H. Lamson will form a fitting supplement to that of his friend William B. Cushing, which appeared in a recent number of the United Service, since these two gallant young officers often fought side by side and without a shadow of jealousy were continually vieing with each other to see which would win the greatest success in action." Such a complimentary and deserved recognition of gallant services at the hands of a brother officer must be very gratifying to Capt. Lamson.

McCormick's Almanac.—Twenty-six years ago, the first number of McCormick's almanac was issued in this city. Every year since its first issue this useful publication has made its appearance. The almanac for the coming year has just been issued, and a copy left at this office. It contains 71 pages, is neatly printed and presents much important statistical matter pertaining to the growth, resources and population of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Failed to Pay His Bet.—A day or two before the election, J. B. C. O'Neil was bantered by Mr. Morand to bet on Hancock, but he declined to wager money. He proposed in case of Garfield's election to wheel Morand on First street from the Clarendon hotel to Clay street, between 10 o'clock A. M. and noon, within 30 days from date of election. O'Neil has signified a readiness to perform his part of the contract, but Morand declines to take the free ride.

Well Lighted.—Knott Bros. have placed on the Stark street ferry two largest size locomotive head lights ordered especially from Chicago. The large lamps formerly used on the ferry have been placed on the pontoons, one this side, the other at the East Portland landing. This increased illumination gives additional security to teams on dark nights, and is appreciated by the thousands of foot passengers.

Registered and Money Orders.—By the outgoing steamer 183 registered packages (many were held over on account of rush) were sent, and during Monday and Tuesday, 200 eastern and foreign orders were issued. The bulk of the registers were undoubtedly presents and at least one-half the orders were of similar intent. The force in these departments anticipate an equal amount for next steamer.

[illegible] en Route.—Sheriff Storrs, of The Dalles, arrived here last evening, having in custody a prisoner named J. H. Denler, who was convicted of the crime of burglary and sentenced to the penitentiary for the period of one year. The crime was committed at the Cascades. Officer and prisoner will leave this morning for Salem.

[illegible] Returned.—Mr. C. P. Ferry, who went over to Washington territory, some days ago to adjust the insurance on the recently destroyed building of Dr. Henraham, of that place, returned [illegible] Tuesday evening. The building and contents were insured in the North British Mercantile Company for the sum of $2500.

Movable Feasts.—According to McCormick's almanac the following movable feasts will take place during the year 1881: Septuagesima Sunday, February 13th; Ash Wednesday, March 2d; Easter Sunday, April 17th; Ascension Day, May 26th; Whit Sunday, June 5th; Corpus Christi, June 16th.

[illegible] Coaches.—This is a new style of vehicle recently introduced in Philadelphia and calculated to supersede the street car. They are run quite extensively in that city and a fine opening is offered here for the introduction of similar vehicles. Lines on Washington and other streets west from First would be made to pay.

[illegible].—Mr. T. F. Oakes, vice president and [illegible] of the O. R. & N. Co., has appointed Mr. [illegible] general freight and passage agent of all [illegible] of that company, with his office in Portland. The appointment will take effect on the 1st [illegible].

[illegible].—The pilot house of the little steam ferry boat Veto has been taken off since the boat has commenced to make regular trips on the cable. As there is no necessity for rudders to guide the boat, the steering apparatus has been taken off.

[illegible].—Knott Bros. are having now head-lights placed in position on their ferryboat. These lights are very useful, as they will enable drift wood or boats to be seen for some distance, and thus prevent collisions.

Thursday Evening Lecture.—Dr. Lindsley has returned and to-night will deliver his usual Thursday evening lecture.

LOCAL LAW MAKING.

Regular Council Meeting—Usual Routine of Business.

The city council met in regular session last night, Mayor D. P. Thompson, presiding; the city auditor and clerk and deputy, Chief of Police Lappeus, and all members including W. H. Andrus, present.

VETO MESSAGE.

A communication from the mayor was read vetoing the ordinance adopting report of city surveyor in the matter of the extension of Madison street, from the east line of Eighth street to its intersection with Chapman street, for the following reasons: First, that every property owner on the line of the proposed extension had remonstrated against the improvement; second, that the extension would cross Tanner's creek canyon, entailing an expense so heavy that adjoining property would not be sold for the amount of street improvements; third, that Jefferson street, only one block south, furnished a thoroughfare for persons living west of Tanner's creek; fourth, that it was contrary to the provisions of the revised charter to make such an improvement within six months from October 21, 1880, the date a like ordinance was defeated by a vote of the council.

Ordinance passed over the veto by vote of eight ayes, Councilman Andrus being excused from voting.

CHARGES AGAINST OFFICER GILLIS.

A communication from the mayor, submitting charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, against officer D. J. Gillis, prepared by Chief of Police Lappeus, was read; referred to committee on health and police for investigation.

AGAINST OBSTRUCTING NAVIGATION.

The following communication from Col. G. L. Gillespie, major of U. S. engineers, was presented by the mayor:

U. S. Engineer Office,
Portland, Oregon, Dec. 6, 1880.

To the Honorable Mayor of the City of Portland, Oregon:—Sir—I have the honor to invite your attention to the importance of the city passing an ordinance prohibiting mill owners whose mills lie within the corporate limits, from dumping sawdust and slabs into the Willamette river. These materials are generally soaked with water and readily find their way to the bottom of the stream, near the points of deposit, tending to shoal the water where it is now deep and to aggravate the difficulties to navigation at bars already existing. The deposits on Swan island bar are composed of mud, sticks, slabs and a mixture of mill refuse, part of which it is thought comes from the mills in or near the city. To keep open a navigable channel in the river, at low stage for seagoing vessels, requires the removal annually of a large amount of natural deposits which are made during the continuance of the Columbia river freshets. This removal is sometimes difficult to accomplish speedily on account of insufficiency of funds and imperfect ones of appliances at my disposal, and I would respectfully urge the city for the protection of its own interests, to assist the government in its efforts of improvement by protecting in the way I indicate herein the navigable waters embraced within its corporate limits. Very respectfully,

G. L. GILLESPIE,
Major of engineers, Bt. lieut. col. U. S. A.

Referred to the committee on commerce.

Very respectfully,

E. J. JEFFERY.

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

[Dalles Times.]

On Wednesday of last week work in the shops of the O. R. & N. Co. in this city was shut down, and will continue so for two weeks at the least. Our reporter, in conversation with Mr. J. F. Curtis, the able and efficient master mechanic of the company, and a man through whose superior management and energetic push so much has been accomplished during the past eight months, gleaned the following items of interest in relation to the mechanical doings of the company. During this temporary suspension a new floor will be placed in the machine shop and steam pipes will be run throughout the car, machine and blacksmith shops. These pipes, which are 2½ inch, will connect with the machine shop engine. The pipes leading to the car shop machinery are to feed the new Closs engine now on the way from the east. This engine is 150 horse power, with 16-inch cylinders and 24-inch stroke, and as soon as it arrives will be placed in position between the two buildings. This is a great item of economy, as the entire motive power of the shops will be furnished from this one point. Of the steam pipes there will be 200 feet running through to the car shop and 150 from the blacksmith shop to the machine shop. In the early spring the locomotive power will be increased by the addition of two more locomotives—Baldwin's 36-ton double dome, 18-inch cylinder, and 24-inch stroke. Mr. Curtis says they are sorely pressed for engines, and this addition will be highly appreciated.

In the car shop a number of additions will be made. Besides the machinery now in use there will be added a number of saws, planes and lathes of the celebrated Fay make. This department at the present time is capable of turning out seven cars per week, and with the increased facility this number will run up to fifteen cars in the six days. The shops are crowded with work at the present time, but owing to the freeze up, working material gave out, thus affording an opportunity for these much needed improvements.

There are at the present time 200 more cars ordered on the docket, including box, flat, stock, baggage, mail and express cars. As soon as possible the already large force of mechanics will be increased, and work will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The company pay good wages—as good or better than paid in California. The report to be submitted to the officers of the company at the close of the year by Mr. Curtis of work accomplished under his jurisdiction will certainly be a flattering testimonial of this gentleman's executive ability, and will be duly appreciated by the directors of the company. Considering the difficulties with which he has had to contend in the lack of room and working material, the large number of locomotives, cars, new shop buildings and increased facilities are evidences of Mr. Curtis' untiring labors. In the person of Mr. Phipps, foreman of the car shops, he has an able and efficient assistant, and one who thoroughly understands his business. Business will be resumed with renewed vigor as soon as navigation opens.

The Weather East of Us.

[From the Dalles Times.]

From Mr. [illegible] Swick, who arrived in town one day last week from a trip to Susanville, in Grant county, we learn the following regarding the weather in the other portion of this county and the condition of stock. Mr. Swick was gone some three weeks, and experienced snow storms from the time he arrived in the Blue mountains. The severest day was the 2d of December, when there was a cold, frosty fog, which was extremely disagreeable. One day the thermometer was 14 deg. below zero, at Parker's saw mill, near the line of this county. This was the coldest day he witnessed, but was not as disagreeable as the one during which the fog prevailed. Mr. Swick camped out nearly the whole time on the trip.

He did not find as much snow beyond the Des Chutes as he did at The Dalles, and he thinks we had the heaviest fall of any part of the county. On the plain between the DesChutes and John Day river the snow was on an average of about a foot in depth. In some places it had drifted and was much deeper.

The general appearance of stock was very bad. The fall season had not been as productive of green grass as usual, and stock was in a very poor condition. When there is nothing but dry grass to feed on cattle gorge themselves on it and die of murrain. For the reasons mentioned, and because very little feed had been put up for cattle, Mr. Swick thinks that this winter will be fatal to stock. Of course there are some of our cattle men who have an abundance of feed, and whose cattle are in fair condition. Such will survive any severity of weather. Another great hardship is the scarcity of water, a great many of the streams and springs being frozen, and yielding no supply. Sheep are looking pretty well, but there will be a great loss of them. Generally speaking sheep men make no provision for their flocks in the shape of feed. The object is to corral them at night and drive them to the range during the day. If they can get at grass and have a good covering of wool, sheep generally weather through the winter pretty well. The cold winds are the most disastrous to them.

THE CASCADE MOUNTAIN ROAD.

A Statement of Land Agent Prosser in Reply to Messrs. Wheeler and Crawford.

PORTLAND, Dec. 14, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Two communications appear in your issue of the 11th inst. signed by Jason Wheeler and Jno. A. Crawford, president of the W. V. and C. M. W. R. Co., respectively, which contains statements and assertions of such an extraordinary character that I take the earliest opportunity afforded me to correct them, and request of you the necessary space for that purpose. If these letters were confined to criticisms of the official report, which I made some weeks ago in regard to that road, I should say nothing, but leave the report to stand or fall on its own merits, but when my reputation for truth and veracity is attacked I am compelled promptly to seek its vindication. Mr. Wheeler endeavors to convey the impression in his letter that I spoke in complimentary and satisfactory terms of the entire road, or that portion of it over which we traveled together. Nothing could be further from the truth. I did say that portions of it were reasonably good, better than I expected to find it, in the mountains especially, excepting the bridges, which were, in some places, greatly needed, and some minor improvements and repairs, which would facilitate travel, but other portions I said were outrageously bad, and about 338 miles west of Albany we found no road of any kind whatever on the line indicated by the map. Mr. Wheeler says that we might have gone on but that I wished to return on account of the cold weather. Perhaps we might have done so but it would have been traveling through sage brush and bunch grass hunting for stakes which were said to have been placed some ten years ago about a mile apart, just as the road was laid out or "constructed" through eastern Oregon generally. There was not a sign of a road there of any kind whatever, except a little grading which a man might do in a day, about a mile and a half from the road leading from Fort Harney to Winnemucca, and this was only discovered after a search of about two hours on foot by Mr. Burns, Mr. Wheeler and myself. I said to Mr. Wheeler distinctly and expressly at the time, that it was not my business to make the road; that I was not there for that purpose and that I did not propose to travel through the sage brush for 110 miles, more or less, seeking for the few remaining traces of a party which went through the country ten or eleven years before. Mr. Wheeler had already had considerable difficulty in finding and following the road between Prineville and Fort Harney, owing to the fact that, for the want of bridges, as on Beaver creek and in Harney Lake valley, where he had located the line of the road and made it himself, as far as it was made, the settlers were obliged to change the road and improve it themselves, and it was not probable that he could follow the line of a road which he had never seen, and where there was absolutely no road in existence. Milton Hale, of Albany, who was, I am informed, one of the original stockholders and directors of the road company, and who had located this part of its line, said to us repeatedly before we left Albany that to the best of his knowledge there had never been but one wagon over this part of the road, and that was in 1869 or in 1870, and he doubted very much whether we could find or follow it, as there were very few places where any grading was done, and even this might have disappeared because of rains, etc. Mr. Hale at first agreed to go with us, but subsequently declined. Mr. Burns, of Burn's ranch on Crane creek, referred to by Mr. Wheeler, is an extensive stock-raiser and dealer, who has several thousand head of cattle ranging in the identical country through which this road is supposed to run beyond Crane creek, and who, in the herding and rounding up of these cattle, has traversed it in all directions during the past six years, assured us that there was no road to be found as claimed by the company, or as marked down on the map and there was therefore nothing to be done but return. He had never heard of any road being even projected through that portion of the country, until shortly before our visit. Between Fort Harney and the south fork of the Malheur river, a distance of about 45 miles, the W. V. & C. M. W. road, simply followed an old road which was located between Fort Harney and Winnemucca, and in use before this road company reached that section of the country. The road company did no work on this part of the line, but the settlers were obliged to build bridges over Cow creek and Crane creek, and a bridge—supposed to have been built by the troops—has been constructed over Harney creek. This bridge is very much out of repair and others are much needed on this side of Fort Harney. The settlers have also been obliged to build a bridge over Silvies' river and I was informed that during the past summer, both Silvies' river and Silver creek were not fordable until about the first of August. Of course this want of bridges is a source of great inconvenience to the settlers. Mr. Wheeler says that heavily loaded wagons travel the road between Prineville and Fort Harney, and that the settlers from Harney lake valley come to Prineville for their supplies. The truth is that very few men with teams come from that valley to Prineville. We met a few and they informed me that they could haul about half an ordinary load, and that with great difficulty. They complained bitterly about the character of the road and said that a "wagon track across the country was not a road" and yet the company had secured, they said, "an immense tract of land to pay for building a road," amply sufficient to pay for the construction of a good road with all necessary bridges and improvements. Army wagons and emigrant trains have gone through this part of eastern Oregon in all directions. In consequence of the very bad road between Fort Harney and Prineville, many of the settlers in Harney lake valley go to Canyon City by a difficult road, having no grant of land to aid in its construction, rather than to Prineville, and a party of six wagons was absent from the valley gone to Canyon City, for supplies when we passed through.

To frequent suggestions that I made in regard to work and improvements needed on that part of the road in eastern Oregon, Mr. Wheeler's invariable reply was that all the money which the company could or would raise was expended in making the road through the mountains, and that neither time nor money was left for work beyond. To the question as to why the company did not sell some of its earned lands for the purpose of raising money to complete [illegible] replied that the country east of the mountains was new and unsettled, and much of it yet occupied by hostile Indians, and therefore sales could not be effected. Perhaps I should have stated in the outset that the act of congress, passed in 1866, making a grant of land to this road company required its completion within five years or before 1871. It should also be stated that the stockholders who constructed the road—as far as there was any construction—sold out their stock to the present stockholders almost immediately after they claimed to have completed the road and obtained the grant of land upon the certificate of the governor. This sale was effected at a large advance upon its original cost. Mr. Wheeler represents himself as not a stockholder, and would have his readers understand that he is a disinterested party, except in so far as a small contract was concerned, and the charge of a few working parties. The facts were, as he represented them to me, that he was one of the leading stockholders and directors of the company, that he had superintended the construction of the road between Albany and Fort Harney, and that he had been the owner of a considerable amount of the stock of the company. He also claimed to have negotiated the sale of his own and a large amount of the stock of his friends, to the present stockholders at $400 a share, the par value of the shares being $100 each. What the actual cost of the stock was I am not informed. However, having been instrumental in selling this property to the present stockholders, he expressed himself as anxious to see the property remain in their undisturbed possession. This sale was made in 1871, and the present stockholders have been in possession since that time. I replied that I should be compelled to report the facts, no matter who should be hurt thereby. To the claim he often made that the present stockholders should have continued to complete and improve the road, they replied that having purchased the road and property at high figures, with the understanding that it was completed, and having the certificate of the governor to that effect, they did not feel themselves bound to expend any more money in its construction. When on our return from Crane creek, having found no road beyond, and admitted Mr. Wheeler, said a "sad mistake" had been made, he asked me if the company would be allowed to complete the road. To this I replied that I did not know, that my duty was simply to report the facts in regard to it. I said that probably they would have some trouble about it. This I supposed was sufficient, unless a man were so stupid and dull of comprehension as not to understand the most common words in the English language.

Mr. Wheeler claims to have expended honestly all the money furnished him by the company. He says it was not his fault that more money was not raised or expended. This I have never disputed. I have never said that it was his fault more means were not to be had, or expended in the work. He says that $65,000 were expended on the entire line of 448.70 miles. He says, and the work shows for itself, that nearly the whole amount was expended in crossing the Cascade mountains. It is only necessary to mention the statement to show the utter absurdity of properly constructing a road for that distance, much of it through a mountainous and rugged country, in the expensive times between 1866 and 1871.

The absurdity of this statement is only equaled by the other assertion that no bridges were needed for the last 200 miles of the road. Mr. Hale says that from $40,000 to $50,000, probably $45,000, were expended on the entire line of road. The leading citizens of Albany and its vicinity were anxious to secure a road across the mountains. They organized a company for that purpose and began its construction without anticipating aid from the government. All this was creditable to them but the expenditure of $65,000 in building a road across the mountains will hardly be considered an equivalent for 850,260 acres of public land. They commenced their road about 34 miles east of Albany and for the next 60 miles through the Cascades did considerable work. Beyond they merely made a wagon track. In the valleys of Crooked river and the Ochoco their line of road is now included in the fields of the settlers, who have made a county road along the foothills and built the necessary bridges over those streams at their own expense. The hostility of the citizens along the line of the road in eastern Oregon is made an excuse for not improving the road. That hostility has been occasioned by the fact that much of the land has been withheld from the market by the road company, and yet the settlers have to make their own roads and build their own bridges. Mr. Wheeler says the mails are carried over "different portions and for many miles" of this road. The mails are carried from Eugene to Camp Polk by the McKenzie road, thence over about 20 miles of this road to Crooked river. The rest of the road has never been used for mail service. It was a frequent expression of regret by Mr. Wheeler that it had never been so used, as if so it might have been kept in better condition.

The letter signed by Mr. Crawford is of a similar character. His statements in regard to our interview on my return to Albany are a tissue of unmitigated fabrications. In reply to his inquiry as to my opinion of the road I stated, positively and emphatically, that I found a part of the road in reasonably good condition, excepting the bridges, which were much needed, with minor repairs and improvements; that a part of the road was very bad; that on the eastern end of the line there was no road at all; that I should be compelled to report to the general land office that the law had not been complied with in the construction of the road, and that the company had not earned all the lands they claimed. His first reply was that it mattered very little to him as he only owned four shares of the stock of the company and had never owned any more. I was told that these shares had been given to him in order that he might hold the office of president of the company. I mentioned to him a number of bridges very much needed, and which had never been built. He says in his letter that the bridges had been built, but had been afterwards burned down. There is not a word of truth in this statement. I mentioned three bridges needed over the Santiam, one over Elk creek, one over Soda creek, one over Snow creek and one over a very rough and rocky branch of the Santiam, near the foot of what is known as Seven-mile hill, with other streams beyond, which had never been bridged. I called his attention to the fact that during the past season, for the want of those bridges the road over the mountains was not passable until the 18th day of July and that many people on this account had to go around by The Dalles, a long distance out of the way, to reach their destination east of the mountains. He claimed that the heavy snow of last winter was the cause of the delay; that those bridges would be a heavy tax on his stockholders who had already paid a big price for the road; that they were preparing to do some grading on the south side of the river, which would obviate the necessity of two of these crossings of the Santiam river, with many other excuses. He desired a copy of my report when prepared, but as I could not properly furnish a copy to any one, in advance of its delivery to the department in Washington I stated that he could probably obtain it there without difficulty. I stated at the same time that I had no hesitation in giving him to understand the tenor of the report as above given. Nor is there a word of truth in Mr. Crawford's assertion that I denounced Mr. Barnes' report to the land office as a lie on my return to Albany. There was not a word said about Mr. Barnes at that time except in reply to an inquiry I said that I had not seen Mr. Barnes when in Prineville, because he was away from home. Before going over the road, Mr. Crawford informed me that a controversy was going on between Mr. Barnes and the company, which was probably the cause of his complaint. I said that I should duly consider that fact; and I further than this there is not a particle or shadow of truth in Mr. Crawford's wild and reckless statement. It is a pure figment of his imagination.

I deem it unnecessary to allude further to the misrepresentations contained in these letters. I am disposed to believe that neither of them was written by the person whose signature is attached, but that they signed them without knowing or fully understanding their contents. If, however, their object should be to divert public attention from the transactions in which they have been, or are now engaged, by rushing into print, and publishing false and slanderous charges against me individually, I shall try to find appropriate means of defense.

I have not the slightest interest in the road company, either for or against them, except that I desire to see justice done to all parties. It is simply my duty to report the facts to the proper authorities, who will doubtless take such action as law and justice, truth and equity may demand. If the settlers on the other side of the mountains have been treated unjustly they should be heard. If the road company has discharged its duty in the premises, that fact can easily be established; if not, they have no right to complain if the law is invoked to provide a remedy. I am very respectfully,

WM. F. PROSSER,
Special Agent General Land Office.

NOT A BEVERAGE.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine, with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poisonous drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hops, that is, more real hop strength, than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them and the physicians prescribe them."—Rochester Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.
